Male Nurse Is Motivated By Desire to Help Sick

A bullet-ridden Egyptian and a tiny baby with an incurable heart disease continue to motivate Ronald R. Reed, R.N., in a lifetime of service to others. Reed, evening supervisor in pediatric and medical nursing areas at South Bay Hospital, wanted to be a nurse from early boyhood because of his need to help people.

Born in West Bromwich, Staffordshire, England, Reed began a volunteer career of first aid in the Boys' Brigade during 1946-50, followed by two years in the Royal Army Medical Corps. He served as a corpsman in Egypt at a military hospital specializing in casualty work and tropical diseases.

HE ATTENDED Diploma School in England and worked in West Bromwich District Hospital for three years after receiving his R.N. in 1955. Included in his nine years of nursing in England, Reed took a graduate course in diseases of the chest, became a member of the British Tuberculosis Association, and specialized in public health in the field of chest diseases. In 1961, Reed accepted a position as head nurse for the University of Texas in Galveston and from there in 1964 became a supervisor in the Kaiser Foundation Hospital in Harbor City prior to being employed by South Bay Hospital. One of the most outstanding experiences of his career involved care of an Egyptian who had been wounded during Nasser's move for a United Arab Republic when King Farouk was ousted from Egypt. "The man was brought in for aid with bullets in every limb and a line of holes in both chest and abdomen," Reed relates.

"THOUGH we could not save him, I was proud of all that we were able to do. The experience strengthened my desire to continue to help people, sustained me through the defeat, and brought me to a confidence that with knowledge and dedication the next patient could make it." Reed's motivation in the field of pediatrics was determined at West Bromwich when a 5-month-old baby with a fatal heart condition was in his care. "Nothing could be done for the child," he said, "and he died in my arms. It was at that time that I realized how much I wanted to give my life to the care of children and adults in need.

"The field of nursing is wide open for men of the right temperament and professional training," he continued. "Contributing to the recovery of the sick and injured is one of life's most rewarding professions."

Tax Relief Police Deadline Extended to Hold Auction

Assemblyman Robert G. Beverly (R-Manhattan Beach) today announced he is co-sponsoring urgency legislation to extend the deadline for filing property tax relief applications to May 30.

Beverly said this will allow more than 600,000 eligible Los Angeles County residents who have not filed their claims another 45 days in which to apply for the $70 refund from their 1968 tax and the $750 exemption of their 1969 property tax.

The plan which was approved by voters at the 1968 General Election had set a deadline of April 15, the lawmaker said.

Beverly said about one million county residents had taken advantage of the tax relief already.

"The taxpayers of the state," he said, "are entitled to the refund and exemption and every possible opportunity should be permitted to allow them to apply for the benefits."

A French provincial grandfather clock is among the items to be auctioned off Saturday at the Torrance Police Station. The auction will begin at 10 a.m. in the parking patio behind the station.

Also slated for the auction block are auto stereos, tapes, tools, television sets, and 80 bicycles. The Police Department holds an auction every six months to dispose of unclaimed property recovered from burglars. Proceeds go to the city's general fund.

Police ask all local residents to mark their personal belongings so that they may be returned if recovered following a burglary or loss.
